

NOTICE IN HUB MARKETS

This is to certify that I have this day given my son Clyde E. Smith his time during the remainder of his minority and shall claim one of his wages nor pay any debts of his contracting after this date.

Sheffield, Vt. May 7, 1906. M. E. SMITH.

For Sale.

About 40 acres of the very best No. 1 seed corn, guaranteed to grow. 120, 1. C. pigs for sale, second to none in the state. I bought the dam and sire last year and they are both registered. The sire is from the famous C. I. Chamberlain bred and his by L. B. Silver. The dam is from T. J. Brown, was bred and sired by one of Dr. Sparhawk's large Boars, so they are not related as you will see. I invite any one wishing to improve their hog dairy to call and see these pigs for I shall make the price right on them. The service fees of Boar is the old price, $1.00. Payable at time. Write or call over phone.

FOR SALE!

I have on my hands a farm from my brother's estate and wish to close it out at a reasonable price, both from the standpoint of myself and the purchaser. The farm lies in the town of Charleston, and contains 75 acres of fine land. It is known as the Gay farm, and is known to be one of the best farms in this county as a money maker. It will keep 40 cows and a team. The tillage is in good shape and lays well and the pasture is well watered. There is a sugar orchard of 2,000 trees on the farm and there is also two apple orchards. There are two sets of buildings on this farm which could be divided into two farms if desired, but can be easily carried on as one. One set of buildings contains a new 45x100 foot barn with silo. The farm contains considerable wood and lumber. Telephone in house and R. F. D. of mail; village and railroad station in easy reach. Farm will be sold separate or with stock and tools, and on reasonable terms. If you are interested, call on or write.

THE WORLD'S BEST

BY EVERY TEST

Sometimes an article is made so good that folks wonder how it can be sold at the price. That's the trouble with AMATITE; it seems almost too cheap. For a wind, rain and weather proof roofing that will not crack, creep or buckle, rust or rot, there is nothing to compare with it.

Anyone can lay AMATITE.

OUR FARMERS.

REAL FRIENDS OF THE FARMERS.

Our experience and observations in connection with legislative matters in congress which the farmers desire promoted teaches us that the safest way to secure such legislation is by the placing of farmers in the legislative halls. We do not charge for a moment that the farmers do not have good friends who are not tillers of the soil, but most of those persons place the interests of their political party first, whichever party it may be, and the interests of the farmers second, when it comes to choosing between the two.

We have no grievance of any magnitude in this matter for we recognize that every member of the house and senate was nominated in a caucus or convention of the political party which they represent, and upon all matters of a political nature they are expected to fall into line with their party, but there are many questions considered that have no direct relation to any party and ought to be considered with due regard to the interests of the people, which is generally done. It is in such matters as these that a farmer with the interests of agriculture at heart would exert a great influence for agriculture and still act with his political party upon partisan matters.

The great aim of most law-making leaders is to get re-elected, and very often their action upon matters is influenced more by the effect it will have upon this purpose than any other influence. Once elected to congress in either branch, there is a tremendous desire to remain there or go higher, and sometimes this desire overshadows all action in any matter or in any direction. Granting former legislators would be actuated by the same desire, there still remains their instilled interest in agriculture that would assert itself upon many important occasions. The prosperity of all depends to an extent upon the prosperity of agriculture, and that legislator who recognizes this fact the fullest is, other things being equal, the wisest legislator. The importance of this matter is dawning upon the farmers, and we are to see more tillers of the soil in the halls of congress from both political parties in the future than we have in the past.—Exchange.

Selecting Eggs for Hatching.

The Connecticut station, in one of its bulletins, says that care should be exercised in selecting eggs for hatching. Eggs for this purpose should be of uniform shape and size and thickness of shell. Rough-shelled, dirty and mottled eggs with thin shells should be excluded. There is some doubt as to the advisability of setting small eggs. While it is possible that they may be as fertile and produce as many chicks as larger eggs, it is probable that pullets from the former will have a tendency to lay small eggs, and the small eggs should, therefore be avoided for hatching. Eggs which are over five days old should not be used. Every egg should be carefully dated when taken from the nest to avoid error on this point. While good hatches have been secured from eggs that were three weeks old when placed in the incubator, as a rule they cannot be expected to hatch well after they are ten days old.

To Protect Corn from Birds.

A young Vermont farmer has successfully used the following method to get rid of crows and blackbirds, which were destroying his corn crop: Take a mixing spoon full of liquid coal tar, have it warm, then mix it with with about one-half bushel of seed corn. Mix thoroughly. Then dry by mixing in land plaster or wheat middlings. It works better if mixed a few days before planting. Too much tar may cause a little inconvenience in planting. If the planted brush gets coated soak it out in kerosene.

Test the Corn Planter.

The matter of testing the corn planter should not be put off until it is set to work in the field, but should be given two or three preliminary tests to see just what kind of work it will do. Many a man who takes plenty of pains in the matter of selecting and testing his seed corn falls down badly when it comes to testing the corn planter.

If your currant bushes are attacked by worms at any time during the next few weeks or later, dust them with white hellebore powder. The same treatment will fix the slugs which may attack your garden rosebushes.
